1V. Ability Enhancement Course

Semester I

Paper 1: English Language

Course Level Learning Outcomes

The purpose of this course is to introduce students to the theory, fundamentals and tools of communication and to develop in them vital communication skills which should be integral to personal, social and professional interactions. One of the critical links among human beings and an important thread that binds society together is the ability to share thoughts, emotions and ideas through various means of communication: both verbal and non-verbal. In the context of rapid globalization and increasing recognition of social and cultural pluralities, the significance of clear and effective communication has substantially enhanced.

The present course hopes to address some of these aspects through an interactive mode of teaching-learning process and by focusing on various dimensions of communication skills. Some of these are:

Language of communication, various speaking skills such as personal communication, social interactions and communication in professional situations such as interviews, group discussions and office environments, important reading skills as well as writing skills such as report writing, note-taking etc.

While, to an extent, the art of communication is natural to all living beings, in today's world of complexities, it has also acquired some elements of science. It is hoped that after studying this course, students will find a difference in their personal and professional interactions.

The recommended readings given at the end are only suggestive; the students and teachers have the freedom to consult other materials on various units/topics given below. Similarly, the questions in the examination will be aimed towards assessing the skills learnt by the students rather than the textual content of the recommended books.

Paper 2: Listening and Speaking Skills

About the Course/Objective of the Course: Learning any Language involves the growth and development of four major language skills, popularly known as LSRW, i.e. Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing. Without these skills the language acquisition process remains incomplete and unsuccessful. This course will focus on the first two skills and make the learners aware of their importance. Listening as a skill surprisingly is often neglected. But it is the first major skill through which everyone learns to utter his/her first sounds. This course will— attempt to explain the significance of Listening as a skill, strategies of listening, and types of listening, as well as it will highlight on the various barriers to Listening. This course will also elaborate on the second language skill, i.e. Speaking. Everyone nourishes a dream of speaking fluently and speaking with confidence. In order to focus on fluency and confidence, often we forget that Speaking is a skill and that needs proper understanding and training. This course will highlight how developing one language skill is dependent on the development of another language skill—e.g. Speaking depends on the development of Listening skills. This course will attempt to reflect on the various stages of Speaking, Sub-skills of Speaking.

Course outcome:

- The students will get a holistic view of the four Language skills
- The students will learn the importance of Listening as a major Language Skill.
- The students will be able to adopt various strategies of Listening and learn about various types of Listening
- The students will be able to understand that interdependence of the Language skills
- They will learn about various stages of Speaking and its purposes
- They will also know about the major sub-skills of Speaking.
